

Thousands of families have benefited from the CMT programs

Every day, dozens of families benefit from the subsidies delivered by the different programs in the Congregación Mariana Trinitaria (CMT) Welfare Ecosystem Model, in order to improve their quality of life and health

Congregación Mariana Trinitaria has helped vulnerable people for more than two decades in matters of health, economy, housing, access to water, food; among others. All that time, thousands of families all over the country have been able to get benefits; thousands of students, farmers, mothers, children, and elderly people. CMT is committed to help people who need it; that means that nobody is excluded so, this non-profit organization develops 11 inclusive welfare networks to improve social, economic, and patrimonial environments for Mexican people.

“We must transform this country, which demands justice and it also wants to be heard”.

Dra. H. C. Catalina Mendoza Arredondo. Founder of Congregación Mariana Trinitaria.

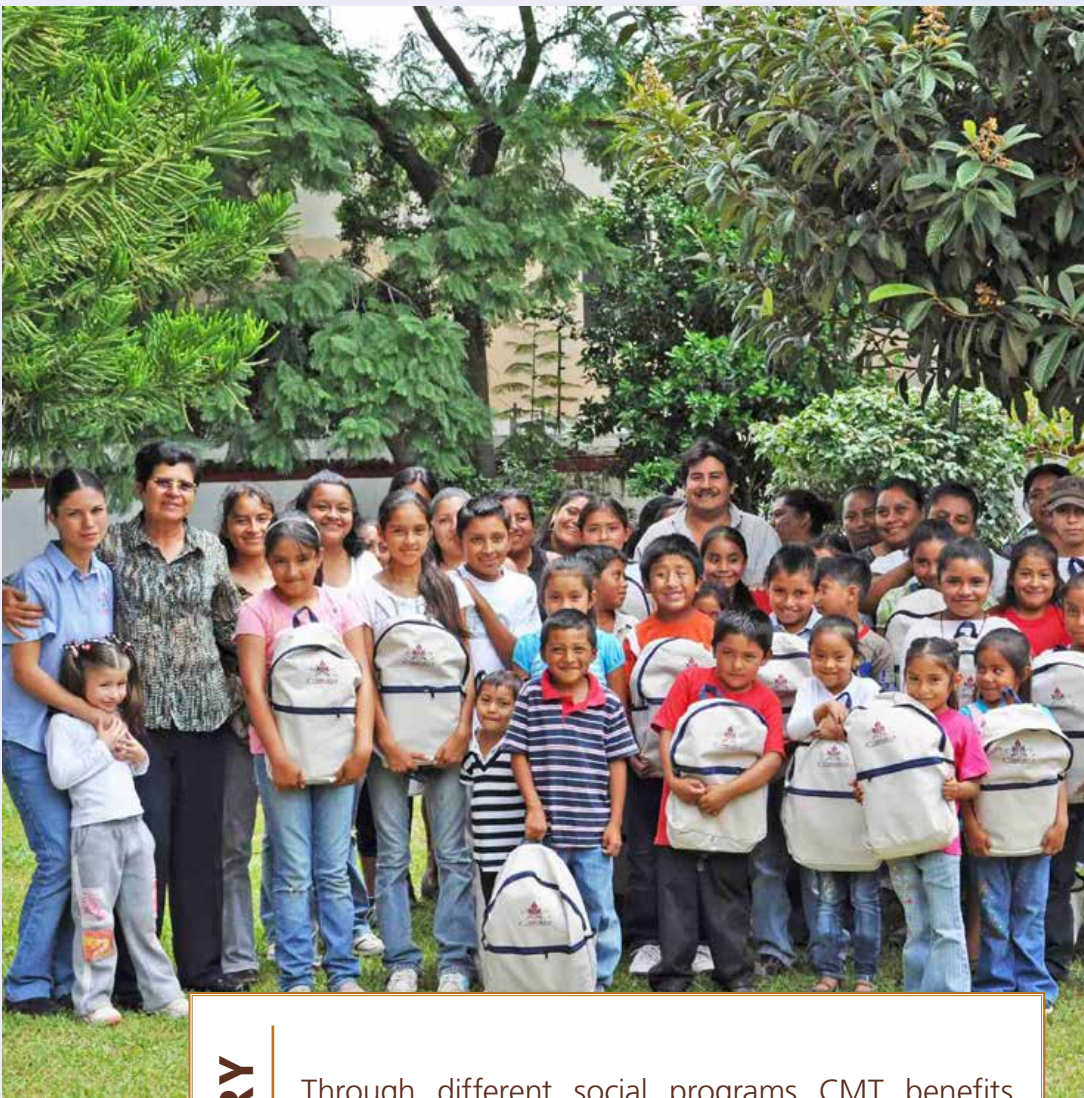

Welfare Ecosystem

Thousands of families, most of them living in rural areas, are affected by the fact of not earning enough money to have a balanced diet, a decent house, or education; and also, the opportunities to improve their quality of life are just a few. For that reason, CMT developed and implemented social programs through 11 different networks in the Welfare Ecosystem Model, so as to help young people, parents, students, and children; because they all live in vulnerable situations. The organization started a transformation process in order to grow, face challenges and fight social backwardness. It developed a functional structure which included factors that have impact on issues like health, social and economic development, and welfare. The Welfare Ecosystem Model is the structure that allows CMT to focus and lead its programs to benefit people who need help. It aims to have a positive impact on the rates of marginality, and also to encourage good practices among the citizens, as they all together can improve public policies.

CMT successful case

CMT developed and implemented social programs through 11 different networks in the Welfare Ecosystem Model, so as to help young people, parents, students, and children; because they all live in vulnerable situations.

SUMARY

Through different social programs CMT benefits thousands of families who live in rural areas in the country. Their quality of life is being affected due to the fact that they face economic lacks and limited opportunities.

“Thanks for the opportunity to let me be myself; to create, grow up, and leave a mark on the hearts and memories of all the people”.

Dra. H. C. Catalina Mendoza Arredondo. Founder of Congregación Mariana Trinitaria.

Rural communities

According to data provided by the National Council for Evaluation (CONEVAL), one out of four indigenous people live in situations of poverty, and such a fact was considered an “alarming” number. Housing in those areas is built with cardboard, sticks, metal sheets, and sometimes people can only use pieces of fabric to protect the areas they live in. They do not own a decent restroom and they are able to build latrines only in order to cover their basic needs. CONEVAL reveals that the economic structures in indigenous areas are mainly committed to agriculture, as this is their only way to get jobs and salaries. However, that is not enough if they want to get a basic food basket, medical assistance, benefits at work, or rights in any of those areas. Due to that, CMT promotes programs to help people in vulnerable situations to allow the improvement of their living conditions and quality of life. The objective is to provide them with opportunities to develop, and to help Mexican families to combat the precariousness in the areas they live in. The Welfare Model developed by this organization helps the most vulnerable people and it provides benefits through one or more of the Welfare Networks in the Model. The only purpose is the improvement of their housing, education, economy, support to agriculture, among others.

Welfare Ecosystem Model CMT

Food Network 	Environment Network 	Education Network 	Human Security Network
Health Network 	Energy Network 	Water Network 	Productive and Financial Inclusion Network
Housing Network 	Art, Culture, Sports and Youth Network 	Innovation and management of knowledge Network 	